

Flyers have to wait longer for second cab pick-up point at Chennai airport

CHENNAI

Air passengers were initially relieved when it was announced that an additional cab pick-up point would be set up near the T1 domestic terminal at Chennai International Airport this month. However, much to their disappointment, they will have to wait for another two months for its opening and, in the meantime, continue to take the long walk to the multi-level car parking lot.

The delay is attributed to the ongoing plaza and landscaping work opposite the T1 terminal. Passengers flying into the Chennai airport have had to struggle to board a cab. As soon as they exit the arrival hall, they are forced to carry their baggage to the second level of the parking lot to get a cab.

The Airports Authority of India (AAI) had drawn flak over this arrangement and there had been a deluge of complaints from air passengers on social media platform X. This eventually led to the decision to reintroduce a second cab pick-up point opposite the T1 terminal, where it was originally located.

‘Installing canopy’ AAI officials stated that they were working on sprucing up the area opposite the T1 terminal with landscaping and seating arrangements, providing passengers a place to sit and relax. “We are placing canopies now. Unfortunately, it took us some time to finalise the design of the canopy. After the canopy collapse in Delhi, we wanted to make sure the ones we install here were sturdy and secure. Now, we are facing a manpower issue, which we are trying to resolve. By the end of April, the landscaping work will be completed, and in May, the cab pick-up can begin from this location,” an official said.

Sathish Galley, a frequent flyer, said he returned to Chennai from Hyderabad last week and found it tiresome to get to the parking lot of the airport. “Walking to the multi-level parking lot with my luggage after a delayed flight was extremely exhausting,” he said.
